Editors express concerns

Editorial staff members of the newspaper have charged that they are being given less input in the newspaper's editorial process. The staff, fearing active displeasure, have un-censored newswriters. Charges were made in a five-page letter submitted to members of the administration. The letter stated that the staff was being treated unfairly and that the newspaper was being run in a top-down manner. The staff expressed their frustration with the lack of communication and their desire for more involvement in the editorial process.

10 Americans defy Iranian travel ban

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ten Americans, including former Attorney General Ramsey Clark and Nobel Prize-winning biologist George Wald, defied a Justice Department ban on travel to Iran and participated Monday at the opening of a "Crimes of America" conference in Tehran. U.S. State Department spokesman Hodding Carter called the four-day conference "a propaganda circus."

in a foreign country," Clark said of the failed hostage rescue mission ordered by President Carter in which eight American commandos were killed. The Americans at the conference could be sentenced in the United States to up to 10 years in prison and fined as much as $50,000, but Carter administration officials said the government had not yet decided whether to prosecute them.

The threatened penalties are part of an international economic emergency measure Carter used on May 18 to ban nearly all travel to Iran. Journalists were exempted from the order. The American Friends Service Committee in Philadelphia said the Americans accepted the invitation to attend the conference "in the hope that they may help to defuse tensions between the two countries."

Union protests Japan-steel use

By DAVID KUHN
Universe Staff Writer

Workers at U.S. Steel's Geneva Works "were really upset and almost walked out" last week after finding that Japanese steel was being used to repair part of the factory's coke plant, a spokesman for Local 2701 of the United Steelworkers of America said Monday.

they make their money either way. It doesn't hurt anybody but the workers," the spokesman said.

U.S. Steel has been buying small amounts of steel from Japan since late 1979, Bollow said, but added that this was the first time he'd heard that it was being used at Geneva.

"U.S. Steel's supply division has been buying products for service centers, such as alloyed plates, bars and structural shapes that can't be bought on the West Coast," Bollow said.

"Service centers are like hardware stores," Bollow said. "In order to be competitive with other supply stores on the West Coast, most of which are either foreign-supplied or foreign-owned, they have to buy these products which aren't domestically produced. We used to make these products at our Torrance, California plant, but we had to shut it down last year because of competition from foreign steel. It's nice to say we'd like to buy domestic products, but if the only way you can be competitive is to buy foreign products, what else can you do?" he said.

Although U.S. Steel recently laid off over 200 workers from its Geneva plant, Bollow said that the buying of foreign steel is in no way paradoxical. "These shipments have been very small tonnages at most. Since they've been products Geneva doesn't make and has never made, it doesn't really affect the Geneva plant," Bollow said.

He said that if it weren't for dumped steel — steel sold at a cheaper price than it costs to make and ship it, or at a cheaper price than the foreign producers sell it for in their own country — the products the United States has had to buy could be made and marketed domestically.

"If we didn't have dumped and subsidized steel, we might not have this problem. When foreign governments subsidize steel in their countries and export it, what they're doing is subsidizing unemployment in our country," Bollow said.

centive program which was eliminated by The Universe business office without student consultation. "No students were even informed of its consideration until after the decision was already made," said the letter.

It continued to say the decision resulted in a 25 percent drop in advertising sales and a massive student editorial layoff. The newspaper is now faced with a "nearly $50,000 deficit and the department chairman did not even meet with the staff to discuss the loss of their jobs until after he was petitioned."

"In reference to the eight staff layoffs, it is better to be consulted when it affects people and their jobs. I think they ought to have a say," said Porter.

"Perhaps if this lack of communication and dialogue were confined solely to minor organizational decisions it would not be as harmful," said the letter. However, it extends to the editorial side of the paper as well, where faculty members are in the "inconsistent position of teaching freedom of the press in the classroom and censoring in the newswroom."

Burnett said while he served as department chairman he was responsible for censoring stories and cartoons, maybe half a dozen times in five years. "He added in some instances the administration or church may have been upset if the story had been published. 'If somebody tells me don't publish something, I don't have any choice, you don't have any choice,' he told the students."

"If there's been any error in the past year, a major one is a breach in communication," said Burnett. The students have charged in the letter that the faculty have made "silent decisions" in the management of the newspaper without student input.

"Anytime anything is done without consulting those involved, they are justified in being concerned," said Burnett.

The letter also states that the Burnett's appointment and the changes in the structure of the newspaper were made "without even a formal introduction."

The staff said they fear another layer of editorial control which will be added by Burnett's position of managing director.

However, Burnett said he sees his position as managing director as "an additional faculty body who is concerned and who is a link with the department where the department chairman has neither the time nor the expertise."

Porter said he is supportive of what is happening and that he feels this is a chance for things to improve.

"I view Burnett's appointment as a possible way to start solving problems and begin ending the frustrations," said Porter.

He is concerned, however, that he has been burdened with the list of complaints in the letter. "The news coverage has linked me with those actions for which I'm not responsible," he said, since several of the student's complaints, listed in the letter, concerned

400 stalls affected Parking revision announced

By JEFF HURD
Universe Staff Writer

The new "ACEY" parking system which calls for consolidation of present "B" and "D" zones into one "Y" zone will mean the loss of approximately 400 parking stalls for undergraduate students in the fall.

"I would hope students would try and understand the new system and its advantages before they get all emotional about it," David Sorenson, dean of Student Life, said.

The lost stalls will be in the lots north of the HFAC and northwest of the administration building. The additional stalls gained by the cut will largely become parking space for visitors to the university. According to the proposal, visitors and students posing as visitors have been a major cause of zone misuse and unnecessary congestion in the past.

"I feel the elimination of 300 stalls within the HFAC lot is a slight sacrifice considering it will assure greater safety and a more efficient system overall," Kasey Haws, ASBYU representative on the traffic committee, said.

However, the lots will not be totally lost to students, since 208 stalls within the lot will be designated as graduate student parking and 48 stalls will be for carpools.

ASBYU President Jeff Duke pointed out that students would still have close access to campus if they would carpool. "The administration promised that room would be created within the HFAC lot for every carpool group at the expense of the graduate students first and the visitors second," said Duke.

Sorenson reiterated the same feelings when asked about the carpool stalls. "The zone parking stickers will be available to all undergraduate students living off campus. The cost will be eight dollars and the sticker will expire every four months.

Other new zones will include "C" zones which will be parking space for the residents of Heritage Halls, Helaman Halls and Desert Towers. "C" permits will be valid in "C" or "E" lots at anytime. Cost of one these permits will be four dollars and they will be good for the academic year. The "E" zones will be newly created lots and will be for the use of married students living in university housing.

In the past married students parking in Heritage Halls have caused parking problems for Hall residents, according to the proposal. The creation of these new "E" lots will alleviate this problem. The "E" permit will also be valid in "Y" zones at anytime. Cost of an "E" permit will be four dollars and they too will be valid for a full academic year.

The "A" zones will be for use of faculty/staff members and some graduate students. Under this new system, faculty/staff members will

Pope criticizes gene modification

PARIS — Pope John Paul II, ending a busy four-day visit to France, said Monday that experiments to modify genes are as dangerous to mankind's future as chemical, bacteriological or nuclear weapons.

In a speech to the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in Paris, the spiritual leader of the world's Roman Catholics said "the future of man and mankind is ... radically threatened, in spite of very noble intentions, by men of science."

He specifically linked "genetic manipulations in biological experiments" with weaponry as goals or results "contradictory to those of humanity."

KKK: equal opportunity employer

PHOENIX, Ariz. — The Arizona Department of Economic Security listed the Ku Klux Klan as "an equal opportunity employer" seeking workers to sew 500 sheets, its deputy director conceded Monday. But he said the offer never reached the general public.

"We don't consider the Klan response — that it was an equal opportunity employer on a one-time basis — adequate and we canceled the order last Friday after we checked up," said the official, Don Martin.

The Sun City News-Sun had reported Saturday that the listing went to all state-operated employment offices.

The sheets are to be used in the Klan's robe-selling campaign now under way in Maricopa County, according to a spokesman for the Phoenix chapter of the white-supremacist group. He said the Klan placed the listing with the job services division in order to make sheets before October.

Troops ordered to refugee camp

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. — A contingent of 1,200 Army troops was ordered to this seething Cuban refugee relocation center Monday as President Carter called for tighter security to curtail rioting.

The White House also announced the arrests of about three dozen "rioters" believed responsible for Sunday disturbances in which state police fired toward hundreds of rock-throwing refugees, four buildings burned, five Cubans were hit by gunshots and 15 troopers were injured.

ERA supporters picket temple

OAKLAND, Calif. — About 200 pro-Equal Rights Amendment supporters have picketed the Oakland Mormon Temple in protest of the church's opposition to the proposed amendment.

Protesters at the Sunday demonstration noted news reports that Mormons contributed money toward a successful 1978 campaign against the ERA in Florida.

"We have never opposed the right of the Mormons to their beliefs and practices. Yet, the church is making a concerted effort to defeat the rights to women," said Jane Preece, a University of California student.

The protesters cited records from the Florida Elections Department that showed $17,000 of the $30,759 contributed to Families Are Concerned Today, or FACT, came from California. The organization supported a campaign against the ERA in Florida.

The demonstration lasted about five hours.

Kennedy seeks political miracle

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy raced across the country Monday in search of a political miracle, a last-second turnaround in the 1980 primary campaign he hopes will block President Carter's renomination for a second term.

Carter remained at the White House, assured of picking up the delegates he needs Tuesday to reach the 1,686 required for the nomination. Kennedy campaigned nonstop in New Jersey, California and Ohio — Tuesday's three biggest primary states.

Apostle warns of heresies

By JEFF HURD

Universe Staff Writer

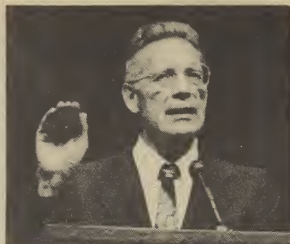

Elder Bruce R. McConkie of the Council of the Twelve told the audience attending the 14-state fireside, "what we believe determines what we do," and "our goal in this life should be to gain the mind of Christ, to believe what he believes, to think what he thinks, to say what he says, to do what he does and to be as he is."

Seven great heresies exist within the Church today which can affect salvation if church members are not aware of them and the falsehoods they contain, he said.

Heresy number one is that vicarious work for the dead offers man a second chance for exaltation. He said that those who reject the gospel in this life and then receive it in the spirit world, go not to the celestial, but to the terrestrial kingdom.

Heresy number five is the belief in progression from one kingdom to another in the eternal worlds. He said this doctrine leads many to believe they can live a life of sin now and still be saved.

Heresy six concerns belief in the Adam-God theory. Elder McConkie stated that "anyone who has received his temple endowments and yet believes the Adam-God theory does not deserve to be saved. Those enslaved by it reject the living prophet and close their ears to the apostles of their day."

Heresy seven, which Elder McConkie says is actually a doctrinal misunderstanding, deals with those who believe that we must be perfect to gain salvation. He said that if this were true, then Christ would be the only individual saved since he is the only individual to live on the earth with a perfect life record.

Elder McConkie said that these heresies are the greatest ones that exist among members of the Church.

The greatest heresies in all Christendom, according to Elder McConkie, are that God is a spirit and not a tangible being, that men are saved by grace alone and not according to their works, and that revelation no longer exists in our day.

Judge sentences LeBaron to life imprisonment

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A judge on Monday sentenced polygamist cult leader Ervil LeBaron to life in prison for plotting the murder of rival polygamist Dr. Ron C. Alred.

In an unexpected move, Third District Judge Ernest Baldwin sentenced LeBaron himself, after dismissing the jury that could have ordered the 55-year-old defendant put to death before a firing squad.

Asked only that "problems had arisen over the weekend," leading him to dismiss the jury.

LeBaron was found guilty of first-degree murder in the May 10, 1977, slaying of Alred, who was shot to death in his Murray, Utah, office by two women wearing disguises.

Alred was the leader of the largest known polygamist sect, with about 2,000 followers.

LeBaron was also found guilty of conspiring in an unsuccessful attempt to kill his own brother, Verlan LeBaron, the leader of a third polygamist group. For that crime, Baldwin sentenced LeBaron to five years to life in prison with the sentences to run consecutively.

Oaks takes PBS helm

President Dallin Oaks returned from China with the Young Ambassadors Saturday but only had one day to relax before journeying to Washington D.C. to officially assume his new role as chairman of the board of the Public Broadcasting Service.

Oaks will replace Newton N. Minow as chairman of 35 elected members who make policy for PBS.

According to a PBS spokesman, Oaks is a member of the board of directors of the PBS board today at a luncheon and spend a few other days getting acquainted with his new responsibilities.

Oaks was elected chairman last February after serving as a member of the board of directors since March 1977. He was appointed vice-chairman of the PBS Transponder Allocation Committee in June 1978. In August of that same year, he was elected chairman pro-tem of the board.

Provo to purchase power

By BILL HICKMAN

Universe Staff Writer

A decision by the Provo City Commission to purchase a 6.25 percent interest in Utah Power and Light will supply the city with an additional 25 megawatts of power.

This is enough to carry its combined city and county load, said Bud Bonnett, director of Provo City Power.

The additional 25 megawatts will come from UP&L's Hunter Electric Generating Station No. 1 in Emery County and will be available some time in September or October, Bonnett said.

The city will finance the project through a bond sale. It is expected to cost about $18.5 million, but the price could change because of inflation, said Richard Foutz, a representative for the Burns & McDonnell engineering firm working with the city on the purchase.

When all fees and expenses are taken into account the total cost could reach about $22 million, Bonnett said.

The bond will be paid for by electric revenues only, Bonnett added, so Provo City Power users can expect rates to increase by at least 5 to 10 percent.

"The amount of increase depends on the price at which the power is bought and the price at which the surplus power is sold back to UP&L," Foutz said.

During last summer's peak consumption months the city used 73 megawatts of power. With this power, Provo will have 115 megawatts available for use, Foutz said.

"We are now at our limits for power in the city," said Mayor James Ferguson.

Provo's present contracts, which buy hydro-electric power, give the city some of the cheapest electric rates in Utah, Commissioner Anagene Meehan said.

He said he hopes that the problem can be solved since "after reading the letter, I sensed a feeling of frustration by members of the student staff."

To help solve the problems faced by The Universe, the students have asked that a committee of faculty, student, and professionals be formed to evaluate the effectiveness of the journalism program.

"We are only asking the right to have an influence and input in an operation which is so vital to our educational experience," said the students.

"SHARING THE GOSPEL WITH AFRICA"

"The Dispensation of the Fullness of Times" has as its commission the responsibility to spread the Gospel to "every nation, kindred, tongue and people." Like the Saints in an earlier dispensation, we nurtured the Church among our own kind. As we gained strength and confidence, the Gospel became increasingly universal. Thousands have received the Gospel all around the world. Now, in response to the voice of a prophet, we are directing our attention to the neglected people of Africa. The challenge facing the Church in reaching out to Africans demands our best attention.

Africa has a rich and fascinating cultural mosaic. It has adopted religious traditions of many kinds. Beginning with a solid foundation of folk religions, it accepted Christianity in the day of the apostles. That intrusion was largely displaced by the powerful doctrines of Islam. With the coming of European explorers, Catholic and Protestant Christianity returned in every quarter. With the revival of political independence, many Africans adopted unique forms of syncretic Christianity.

The object of this presentation is to introduce the diversity of African cultures of religious expressions and to address the challenges that face the Church in presenting the Gospel message to our African brothers and sisters.

Janet Swenson plays Lady Bracknell in "The Importance of Being Earnest" by Oscar Wilde. This play is being presented in the HFAC Parade Theater.

'Earnest' play review

By CHARLES CRANNEY
Universe Staff Writer

Earnestly speaking, "The Importance of Being Earnest," is a success. Those who don't go to see it should earnestly think twice — especially if their name is Ernest. EARNESTLY!

The trivial comedy written by Oscar Wilde is being performed in the Parade Drama Theater until June 14. The setting of the play is in the 19th century society of higher England and focuses on two ridiculous romances. The play revolves around two fellows, Jack and Algernon, whose identities are mistaken.

Before its premier in 1895, Wilde said the play's philosophy is "that we should treat all the trivial things of life seriously, and all the serious things of life with sincere and studied triviality."

Eric Fielding, director of the BYU production, obviously studied the play according to Wilde's directions. With the use of a well-chosen cast, stunning sets and excellent staging, Fielding was able to squeeze every drop of humor out of the text, plus some.

Janet Swenson, who performed the part of Lady Bracknell, and did the costumes for the show, was the highlight of the cast. Dressed in a pink dress and hat, with white gloves and an abundance of gold necklaces, she walked onto the stage with professionalism. Her staged, high-English personality made the audience laugh with delight. When she spoke in anger, vibrations seemed to shake the stage. Her performance would be difficult for any professional to equal.

The rest of the cast also performed skillfully. Each had crisp diction, projected well and pronounced words with the proper English accent. Of extreme importance was the way each performer used his or her eyes to communicate their personality to the audience. However, the cast needed to be more sensitive to the audience's reaction. A few of the jokes were lost when they continued to speak while the audience laughed.

David Nelson, cast as John Worthing, turned apple red when showing anger; his eyes glared as he squinted. In a contrasting situation, Mr. Worthing and the flirtatious Gwendolyn Fairfax, played by Jamie Parker, made a happy mock of the engagement process.

Tim Slover played the part of Algernon Moncreiff, an enterprising and immature gentleman with arrogant manners. His vibrant actions convey Algernon's personality in a magnetic way. An example of the cast missing a humorous bit is the scene where Algernon secretly writes Mr. Worthing's country address, part of his plot to expose him. The audience didn't see any of this. He should be placed closer to the center of action in that scene.

Laura Conover, using her big alluring eyes, played the part of the innocent and hopelessly romantic 18-year-old Cecily Cardew. In mimicking teenage mannerisms, she wore a white dress that aided in creating an incoherent image.

Peter Brunt characterized the shy Reverend Canon Chasuble with a bowed head and nervous movements. His messy hair, coupled with his light tan suit, ecclesiastical collar, round rimmed glasses and wild two-tone shoes, contrasted with his religious personality and he is especially appealing to the audience.

Loretta Maughan complemented the Reverend's personality as she played the part of the maid, Miss Prism.

Eric Samuelson had a dual acting capacity as the butlers Lane and Merriman. Usually the dual role distracts from a play. However, Samuelson uses such varied personalities in each role that it turns out to be a plus.

The sculptresque set of the first act included dual book cases, paintings, an antique clock, velvet padded chairs, decorative plates, a Beethoven bust and a glass lamp. The entire set, combined with high wood-like archways, made the audience breathless and seemed to transport them into a real life situation.

The outdoor setting of the second act is equally beautiful with stonelike masonry and bay windows. Bright stage lighting helps the audience to feel as if they are outside but tends to wash out the pastel colors of the costumes. Also, the audience in the front two rows were bothered with the reflection of the stage lights on the windows.

However, the production of "The Importance of Being Earnest" is one of the finest summer plays that BYU has produced. This is quite a feat.

Sundance opens

The 11th consecutive season of the Sundance Summer Theater will begin next week by bringing a combination of music, dance, humorous conflict and early-Utah history to the outdoor stage.

"Can't Stand Still," a new musical by Utah playwright Joan Oviatt, with original music by Dan Carter, will open the 1980 season on June 9, at 8:30 p.m.

Based on the lives of legendary heroes in early Utah history, the musical attempts to capture the spirit of pioneer Utah and the amusing relationships between the early Mormon settlers and their neighbors. The plot is based on factual incidents from Utah history.

Director Dee Winterton said, "This play is a musical that appeals to all aspects of human emotion. It has humor, sentimentality, tragedy and warmth — all wrapped in the robust style of dance and music that typifies the Sundance Summer Theater."

The Sundance cast is headed by two Sundance veterans, Hayner Roman and Jayne Luke. Ms. Roman was featured in the movie "Harry's War" and Ms. Luke recently directed "Pippin" at the Villa Theater. Both have performed at Sundance for the past eight years.

Other cast members include Nolan Goodwin, Jerry Hatch, Russ Simmons, Rosanna Weeks and Rob West, all returning from last year. Craig Call, Kathryn Laycock and Walt Price are also returning after an absence of several seasons.

Assisting Winterton is associate director Jerry Elison. Jeff Shumway is musical director, Steve Backus is lighting designer, and Eric Fielding created the sets.

Also beginning in June at the Sundance Summer Theater will be "Family Night at Sundance," opening June 16. The production is strongly oriented toward families, and is a musical evening of fun featuring lovable monsters, favorite songs and stories. "Family Night" will be presented each Monday night from June 16 throughout the summer.

Darth Vader and Luke Skywalker battle it out in "The Empire Strikes Back."

'Star Wars' sequel better than original

By KIM KAATMAN
Entertainment Editor

With theater lines eight-people wide and three blocks long, "The Empire Strikes Back."

Science fiction fans fall victim, once again, to the "force," and it seems no one is immune to the magnetic pull of the first "Star Wars" sequel. (There are seven more films to follow.)

"Star Wars" producer George Lucas has surpassed his first effort with this film. Exceptional cinematography, a first-class sound track, familiar faces and dramatic twists in the plot make "The Empire Strikes Back" worth the three-year wait.

The film is a continuation of the original, complete with the Skywalker gang, Darth Vader, his dismal crew and three new faces. Vader's "boss," the Emperor, makes one appearance, one of Han Solo's old gambling buddies Lando Calrissian vasculates between the "forces" of good and evil, and the famed jedi teacher finally appears as the green muppet Yoda.

Technically speaking, the X-Wing Fighters squeeze through spaces with more ease, speed and sound than before. A shower of meteors bombard the Solo ship, Milliner Falcon, and it narrowly escapes the Death Star fleet. The ship, expertly piloted, performs daring feats time and time again. Thrilling scenes fly across the screen drawing audience members to the edge of their seats, and into the scene through the camera's eye.

These scenes, coupled with the super stereo sound-track, literally "force" the theater into light speed, into another galaxy, into another time, long, long ago and far, far away.

"The Empire Strikes Back" is fantastic. Without disclosing essential elements of the film, it should be noted that Yoda makes two significant statements that baffle the mind and bring fear into the hearts of audience members — will it be another three years before we know the full meaning of his words? The film is definitely worth seeing.

If you're moving within the same telephone exchange or local area, you can reduce installation costs by taking all your desk-type telephones with you when you go. It's a simple matter of unplugging them, or cutting the cord. Since we won't have to go out to get these phones, we pass a $5 savings on to you.

And there's still another good way to hold down costs if your home has modular telephone jacks — just pick up the phones you need at one of our PhoneCenter Stores. Then you'll save $3.25 on the installation of your first phone and $1 on each additional phone you take home and plug in. It's well worth looking into.
